Christina Stelmacovich

A native of Toronto, mezzo soprano Christina Stelmacovich is a winner of several international vocal competitions. Her singing has been described as “...stylistically spot-on and vocally splendid.” (Dave Richards, Toronto Concert Reviews). Her career has included performances in Canada, the United States, Austria, Italy, England and Mexico. Christina has appeared as a soloist with some of the most prestigious choirs and orchestras some of which include the City of Birmingham Choir and the Renaissance Singers of England, The Elora Singers, the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, Tafelmusik Baroque Choir and Orchestra, Early Music Vancouver, Early Music Voices of Calgary, the Grand Philharmonic Choir of Kitchener and the New World Orchestra of Mexico City. Equally comfortable on the soloist’s stage as well as singing with professional vocal ensembles, Christina is currently a member of The Elora Singers and the St. John’s Parish Choir in Elora, Ontario.

When not performing, Christina works as the Manager of the Elora Singers, as an adjudicator with the Kiwanis Music Festival, and as a Mom.
